THE FIFTH SUBSCRIPTION CHORAL-SYMPHONY CONCERT Despite the fact of distinct successe

scored by each of the soloists at the fifth subscription concert of the Choral-Sym-phony Orchestra at the Odeon last night, the feature of the evening was the excel-lent rendering of Tschaikoweky's "Sym-phonic Pathetique" (No. 6) by the orchestra I homic Pathelique" (No. 6) by the orchestra itself, the first number on the programme. This, of course, was the mon ambitious enceivor of the evening, as well, but some-times it so happens that soloists, or, maybe, a minor number, may sound the master note of such a concert. Happily, however, Mr. Ernst and his players gave so admir-able an interpretation of the great Tschai-kowsky, symphony that there was no room for doubt as to the crowning triumph lass. for doubt as to the crowning triumph last night. The treat was thoroughly appreciated by a large and brilliant audience. The "Symphonic Pathetique" reveals the genius of Tschaikowsky to a singularly satisfying extent. Its theme is temperamentally suited to the Russlan's moods and in its arrangement he makes the most impressive employment of the modern orchestra dramatically, as well as musically, utilizing every instrument with fine effectivene There may have been greater early com-posers in this lofty field, but it may be posets in this lofty field, but it may be caimed in all frankness that Tschalkowsky at least surpasses their compositions in that he commands an amplitude of orches-tral material utterly unknown to them. In the symphony of last night this truth was made convincingly plain.

The four movements of the composition were treated with keen sympathy by the Choral-Symphony organization. The first, the adaglo, allegro non troppo, rich with a somewhat melancholy atmosphere, received affective interpretation. The second movement, allegro non grazia, fascinating be cause of its strain of barbaric wilds contrasted strikingly with the first, and the contrast was brought out most colorfully in the playing. The allegro molto vivace movement furnished a lighter aspect in this phase of the theme, and then the composition's close, the touching adaglo lamentoso with its skillful employment of the deeper horns, completed an interpretation

The opening number of the programme's second half introduced Miss Ada Crossley, the contralto soloist, in Haydn's ar.a, the Spirit Song," and the first bell-like tone from Miss Crossley's throat promised the success that followed. The tenderness of Haydn's composition was appreciated by the singer, who revealed in its treatment ; voice of sincere sympathy and of much flexibility. For the encore insisted upon by her audience Miss Crossley sang the "Aller-selen" of Strauss, rarely heard and ex-quisitely beautiful. Leencavallo's elegiac medley for strings was the next number and was delicately given.

Sgnor Emille de Gogorza's first number,
the barytone solo prologue, from "I Pag-liacci." was an instant success, The singer's method is dramatic and sometimes florid, and he possesses a magnetic as well as tuneful voice. He also was compelled to give an encore, choosing the spirited and fantastic Figure aria from "Il Bargiere de Sevigila." Following the orchestra's fine study of the introduction to the third act study of the introduction to the third act of "Tannhauser," Miss Crossley was again heard in a group number, Giordani's "Caro mio ben"; Hahn's "Baysage," Tschalkows-ky's "Nur wer die Schnsucht Kennt," and the dainty "Four-Leaf Clover" of Welleby, the singer confirming her earlier success.

This, also, was the case with Signor de

Gogorza's group number, Martini's "Plaisir d'Amour," Rubinstein's "Es Blinkt der Thau," Hildach's "Lenz" and Tschaikowsky's "Serenade de Don Juan," in which a deeper sentiment was possible than in this singer's first number and encore. The pro-

Experienced miners can teil by the effect of the air on their lungs whether there is an excess of black damp, which is dreaded by miners. Mines run fants to keep the interior supplied with fresh air.

The fans in the Tower Grove mine have been working all right, and it is not known how the black damp formed. The miners in the lower working were the first to notice it. Their lamps began to flicker and they felt an oppressiveness about their chests. They made a dash for the shaft leading to the top, alarming other workings by their shouts. Close to the mouth of the shaft their lights went out, leaving them in darkness.

In whispers the men called to one another o make sure all were together. Gustav Blauwitz was missing. When two Gistav Hlauwitz was missing. When two men started back for him, he staggered into the group. He had been at work in another part of the mine and had not noticed the formation of the black damp until his light went out. He fell unconscious. He was carried to the cag; and taken to the surface. The other cage took up other miners. A third trip was necessary before all were gotten out.

ing Cruel Treatment.

R. T. Walters of Belleville yesterday filed suit for divorce from Anna Walters because, he alleges, she has treated him cruelly, even kicking him and throwing shoes at him.

The couple were married on May 22, 1998, at Belleville and lived together until March 1 of this year, when, he says, he was compelled to leave her and seek other lodgings. Walters, in his petition, asserts that since his marriage his wife has frequently thrown various articles of wearing apparel and kitchen urensils at him. On January 25, he asserts, while he was ill, his wife struck him in the face, kicked him and ordered him from the house. On March 15, he alleges, she struck him with a shoe and forced him to leave the house.

Laura White Charged Husband With Deserting Her and Children.

Descring Her and Children.

Fighert White, a fish dealer, was arrested at his store on Missouri avenue, East St. Louis, yesterday on a warrant charging him with abandoning his wife. Laura White Justice of the Peace Boyne will hear the case next Monday.

According to Mrs. White, her husband did not get along with her mother, Mrs. Susan Wright, with whom the couple lived. Two months ago he descried her and her three children, it is charged. The couple have been married seven years. Mrs. White said that during all this time they have lived with her mother, while White declares that his mother-in-law has lived with him during his married life.

HOW PEOPLE THEIR MONEY.

BY CONCEALING it about their person; by stowing it away in mugs, jugs and jars; by sewing it up in skirts and ticks; by tucking it under couches and carpets, in cupboards, stoves and bureau drawers - these are some of the ways by which people lose their money and sometimes THEIR LIVES.

HOW PEOPLE THEIR MONEY.

BY DEPOSITING it in a good, reliable institution, where it may be withdrawn when desired - whether in a day or a year. Confident that this company fully meets the public's needs as such a depository, we tender its services to, and invite business relations with, all who believe in keeping on the SAFE SIDE.
